

The 5th International Conference on “Plant Science and Technology for Sustainable Agriculture: Opportunities and Challenges”

October 29-30, 2026

Sylhet Agricultural University
Sylhet-3100

Agriculture stands at a critical crossroads, facing mounting pressures from climate change, resource depletion, and a rapidly growing population. Addressing these pressing challenges requires the integration of cutting-edge plant science research with practical and field-level technological innovations. The BSPST in collaboration with the Faculty of Agriculture, Sylhet Agricultural University is organizing the International Conference on the aforesaid theme to provide a dynamic platform for sharing cutting-edge research, exchanging ideas, and fostering collaborations addressing challenges in agriculture, food security, climate resilience, and sustainable development. Researchers, academicians, policymakers, professionals and students are invited to join the conference in shaping the future of sustainable agriculture through science, technology, and innovation
